Monday, 20th of May 2019

Glass announces the release of its latest smart glasses, Glass Enterprise Edition 2, enabling AMA to further enhance the company's cutting-edge expertise in the use of smart glasses.

AMA is a global industry leader, selected for the Glass at Work program in 2015 with XpertEye Advanced, a remote assistance solution that has since been deployed extensively across the industrial and medical sectors and is available for a wide range of video sources, including Glass.

Since the first live broadcast with Glass performed between France and Japan in 2014, the use of XpertEye for remote assistance has become widespread in more than 80 countries.

This new generation of Glass is a great addition for XpertEye. These smart glasses offer the best weight and battery power ratio of the market. Its modern design remains an important key in a world where social acceptance prevails, said Christian Guillemot, AMA CEO.

This device also strengthens the partnership between AMA and Proceedix, other historic partner of Glass. All AMA's and Proceedix's users will therefore be able to benefit from the very best of both of the solutions on a single model of smart glasses.

Christian Guillemot, CEO at AMA, aims to reinforce AMA's partnership with Glass and continuing to develop the solution's potential in healthcare and industrial applications.
